video game studies are a relative young but flourishing academic discipline but within game studies however the perspective of religion and spirituality is rather neglected both by game scholars and religion scholars while religion can take different shapes in digital games ranging from material and referential to reflexive and ritual it is not necessarily true that game developers depict their in game religions in a positive confirming way but ever so often games approach the topic critically and disavowingly the religion criticisms found in video games can be categorized as follows religion as 1 fraud aimed to manipulate the uneducated as 2 blind obedience towards an invisible but ultimately non existing deity ies as 3 violence against those who do not share the same set of religious rules as 4 madness a deranged alternative for logical reasoning and as 5 suppression in the hands of the powerful elite to dominate and subdue the masses into submission and obedience the critical depictions of religion in video games by their developers is the focus of this special issue this volume focuses on the depiction of women in video games set in historical periods or archaeological contexts explores the tension between historical and archaeological accuracy and authenticity examines portrayals of women in historical periods or archaeological contexts portrayals of female historians and archaeologists and portrayals of women in fantastical historical and archaeological contexts it includes both triple a and independent video games incorporating genres such as turn based strategy action adventure survival horror and a variety of different types of role playing games its chronological and geographical scope ranges from late third century bce china to mid first century bce egypt to pictish and viking europe to medieval germany to twentieth century taiwan and into the contemporary world but it also ventures beyond our universe and into the fantasy realm of hyrule and the science fiction solar system of the nebula
